Mrs. Yost attended the convention as a delegate from the local auxiliary of the Williams Memorial church and Miss Halphsnyder went as a delegate from the young people's auxiliary. This was the ninth annual meeting of the society of the West Virginia conference and missionary workers from all parts of the state and Kentucky were present. At High School.
A pretty cantata entitled "Ruth and Boaz" the story of which is built about the Bible story of those characters was presented by the Music department of the Fairmont High school this morning at the high school auditorium. The cantata was given under the direction of Miss Venette Hudgson, head of the music department of the school. The cantata was splendidly presented. The solo parts were taken as follows: Mildred Lirim, Ruth, Margaret R. Smith, Naomi, Ruth Johnson, Orpha; Clark, Naomi, Boaz; Charles Laim bridge, Joseph; Ruth Bosserman, Meriam; Robert Yost, Head Reaper; Martha Johnston, Sara; Frances McCray, Anna.

Another pleasing feature of the program was the rendition of a group of songs by Mrs. H. S. Falconer. She sang as one number "Non so piu" Coas Son" by Mozart and was obliged to repeat the number so persistent was the applause.

Brady, chairman of the Home Service department of the local Red Cross chapter, and her secretary, Miss Florence Kneisel, are the proud possessors of beautiful strings of beads which were woven and presented to them by a beneficiary of the Red Cross service in the person of a young Slav of Grant Town. The young man was taken ill and being without funds the local Home service department aided him in securing medicines, physician's services and food. To show his appreciation the young man who had learned the art of bead weaving while in the Marine hospital in Pittsburgh, spent several days in weaving together the strands of beads which he presented to the women. The man has also signified his intention of refunding the department the money expended upon him as soon as he is able to work.
